SPOT Residency: open call for artists

Culture Hub Croatia (CHC), QueerANarchive and Jutro invite emerging artists to apply for residency in the framework of the “Spaces of Tolerance” (SPOT) project. SPOT is a creative program addressing the issue of discrimination and hate against migrants and LGBTIQ+ persons.

The aim of the project is to provide opportunities to come together, express creatively, learn and grow, enabling different target groups to engage and act against hate and discrimination. A holistic eight-month SPOT program, apart from creative workshops for youth and adults, communication campaign and illustrations exhibition, also includes an artist residency: open studio and an artistic intervention in the public space.

Through this open call, we are looking for one artist who will become a resident of the creative hub PROSTOR in Split, managed by CHC. The call is designed specifically for artists of migrant background and/or LGBTIQ+ artists, or artists working with those groups / topics. The duration of the residency is up to 3 weeks, taking place in June or July 2023. The artist will use the residency for conducting research, meeting the local community and presenting their work through a public event. The result of the residency should be a production of an artwork in the public space (in agreement and with the support from the organizers, depending on possibilities). In addition to the accommodation, the artist will be able to use the open studio within the creative hub, with access to the basic tools. Photos of the residency space and more info on the facilities can be found here: <https://www.chc-prostor.com/residency>

Residency duration and period: June-July 2023, up to 3 weeks

Costs: travel and accommodation costs are covered (up to 300 eur for travel). Artist fee is provided (500 eur), as well as budget for production of the artwork (900 eur).
